

High School Communication Education (Speaking, Listening, and Media Literacy) as a Graduation Requirement

Adopted by Legislative Assembly, 2010. Revised, 2012. Revised and accepted by Legislative Assembly, 2017.

The National Communication Association supports the inclusion of communication education as a graduation requirement from the nation's secondary schools and stresses the importance of using appropriately trained teachers to teach communication education.

The National Communication Association will develop communication education resources and a strategy to promote these resources including curriculum development and implementation.
