ONLINE COMMUNICATION COURSES: NCA conducted a search of all 801 websites at colleges and universities that offer a degree in Communication. A basic search on each program's website search engine with the phrase "online courses" was used with the goal of determining how many departmental websites provided information about online Communication course offerings.

Of the 801 department websites visited, 151 (16%) offered registration information for at least one online communication course for the Fall 2013 semester as compared to the 650 (84%) that did not. Note: While a majority of the 650 departments did not have communication online courses available at their institution, several websites required a log in ID and password in order to access online course listings. These institutions were counted as among the 84% of programs that did not offer public access to registration information for online courses.
